Recycled packaging paper is an environmentally friendly packaging material made from recycled fibers, designed to reduce the demand for virgin wood and the consumption of forest resources. It recycles waste paper, old newspapers, cartons and other paper products, and then processes them into new packaging paper through cleaning, beating, bleaching and other processing processes. Recycled packaging paper looks and performs like regular packaging paper, but its manufacturing process requires less energy and water and has lower carbon emissions, helping to reduce negative impacts on the environment. This kind of paper is widely used in various packaging needs, including food packaging, gift packaging, industrial packaging, etc., which can not only protect goods but also promote the company's environmentally friendly image. Due to the cost-effectiveness and environmental benefits of recycled packaging paper, more and more companies and consumers choose to use it to replace traditional packaging materials, promoting sustainable development and the realization of a circular economy. Recycled packaging paper not only helps reduce waste generation, but also effectively reduces greenhouse gas emissions. It is an important part of the modern packaging industry's transformation to green environmental protection.

The global Recycled Packaging Paper market size is projected to grow from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2024 to 2030.
