Research Publication Services refer to a range of professional services provided to researchers, scholars, and research institutions, aiming to assist them in the smooth writing, optimization, submission, publication, and dissemination of academic outputs (such as papers, monographs, and research reports). These services focus on improving the quality, standardization, and efficient dissemination of research results, encompassing multiple stages, from draft preparation to post-publication promotion. Their core goal is to help researchers overcome obstacles in the academic publishing process (such as language barriers, unfamiliarity with formatting standards, and insufficient submission experience), thereby increasing the likelihood of their research results being accepted by academic journals or publishing organizations and expanding their academic influence.

United States market for Research Publication Services is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
