Ring-spun combed yarn is a yarn made of high-quality cotton fibers, which are processed by special spinning methods. The production process of ring-spun combed yarn should first select high-quality cotton fibers with long fiber length, and then comb and comb them to remove impurities and arrange the fibers in parallel direction. This results in smoother, more uniform yarns and less impurities. The combed fibers are then spun using the ring spinning process, which involves passing the fibers through the ring spinning frame, which winds the fibers together to form a strong and durable yarn. Compared with other types of yarn, the resulting yarn has a finer and smoother texture, and is very suitable for high-quality textile products such as clothing, bedding and household textiles. Ring-spun combed yarn is also famous for its strength, durability and softness, making it a popular choice for high-end textile products that need luxury feel and durability. In addition, this type of yarn is usually treated by special finishing process to enhance its performance characteristics, such as moisture absorption and stain resistance.
