Dressing tools (dressers) are primarily used in the manufacturing industry for precise shape restoration, surface repair and sharpening of grinding tools, such as grinding wheels. The main functions are: shape modification, size adjustment, sharpness modification, improvement of grinding wheel surface quality, etc.

There are three main types of commonly used dressing tools (dressers): dressing stones (grinding wheel blocks), diamond pens (diamond grinding wheel cutters) and diamond rotary dressers (diamond rollers).

A diamond rotary dresser is a precision industrial tool used for precise and efficient dressing of grinding wheels. During the grinding process, the grinding wheel will gradually wear, clog, or lose its ideal geometry and sharpness due to long-term use, resulting in a decrease in processing accuracy and efficiency. At this time, a diamond rotary dresser is needed to restore the condition of the grinding wheel.

Diamond rotary dressers are mainly made of high-hardness and wear-resistant natural or artificial diamond materials. These diamonds can be embedded in the working surface of the dresser in the form of a single point or multiple points (such as disc type, roller type, etc.). When the dresser rotates at high speed, it precisely controls the position and depth of contact with the grinding wheel, and uses the extremely high hardness of diamond to cut away the abrasive particles on the surface of the grinding wheel, thereby achieving reshaping of the grinding wheel, repairing dimensional accuracy and improving surface roughness.

The global Rotary Dresser market size is projected to grow from US$ 173 million in 2024 to US$ 244 million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.9% from 2024 to 2030.
