Abstracts

The global Scooter Insurance market size is predicted to grow from US$ 759 million in 2025 to US$ 1212 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 7.1% from 2026 to 2032.

Scooter Insurance is a specialized insurance product designed to cover risks associated with operating scooters, including electric scooters and traditional motor scooters. It typically provides protection against third-party liability, personal injury, theft, vandalism, and accidental damage, with optional coverage for riders and passengers. As urban mobility shifts toward micromobility solutions and shared transportation, scooter insurance has become increasingly important for regulatory compliance, risk mitigation, and consumer confidence. Insurers tailor policies based on usage patterns, vehicle value, and local regulations, making scooter insurance a key enabler for the sustainable growth of personal and shared scooter ecosystems. The average gross margin in this industry reached 17.65%.

In the upstream supply chain, scooter insurance relies on actuarial data, risk modeling tools, telematics platforms, and regulatory frameworks. Key upstream suppliers include LexisNexis Risk Solutions for risk and claims data, Guidewire for core policy administration systems, and Verisk for underwriting and pricing analytics. These inputs support accurate pricing and claims management. Midstream insurance providers focus on product design, underwriting, distribution, and claims handling. Downstream, scooter insurance products are purchased by customers such as Lime, Bird, and Uber (for scooter and micromobility services), as well as individual riders. Expansion of shared mobility services and tightening urban safety regulations continue to drive downstream demand for scooter insurance.
