Abstracts

The global Seafood Delivery Services market size is predicted to grow from US$ 17119 million in 2025 to US$ 24517 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.3% from 2026 to 2032.

Seafood Delivery Services refer to online or offline services that purchase, process, package, and deliver fresh, chilled, frozen, live, cooked, or prepared seafood products to households, restaurants, hotels, retailers, and foodservice operators. These services usually combine seafood sourcing, cold-chain packaging, temperature-controlled storage, order fulfillment, last-mile delivery, product freshness assurance, and sometimes subscription seafood boxes or ready-to-cook meal solutions.

The industry is developing toward direct-to-consumer seafood e-commerce, subscription seafood boxes, frozen seafood delivery, sustainable sourcing, digital traceability, and smarter cold-chain logistics, supported by rising demand for healthy protein, convenient online grocery shopping, premium seafood, and reliable restaurant supply. OECD-FAO's 2025-2034 outlook covers continued growth and market development for fish and aquatic products, while seafood e-commerce is also benefiting from improved cold-chain systems and traceability technologies. Key opportunities include premium frozen seafood, certified sustainable seafood, B2B restaurant delivery, urban same-day delivery, and value-added prepared seafood; key challenges include high cold-chain cost, spoilage risk, food safety compliance, seasonal supply volatility, price fluctuation, last-mile delivery losses, and consumer trust in online seafood freshness.
