Abstracts

The global Secondary Processed Wood Products (SPWPs) market size is predicted to grow from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2026 to 2032.

According to ITTO's relevant report, the trade in tropical wood products was more resilient in 2021 than had been anticipated in early 2020 at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, particularly the trade in secondary processed wood products. Demand picked up in the second half of 2020 and in 2021, when China's economy returned to growth and the consumption of tropical secondary processed wood products increased in the USA and other consumer markets.

In 2022, however, the world economy, already weakened by the pandemic, was affected by several shocks: higher-than-expected inflation worldwide, particularly in the USA and major European economies, triggering tighter financial conditions and reducing consumption of wood-based products; a worse-than-anticipated slowdown in China, the major tropical wood market, reflecting COVID-19 outbreaks and lockdowns and the tightening of regulatory controls to limit property speculation; and the war in Ukraine, which caused severe commodity and energy price shocks and trade disruptions for tropical wood products in 2022.
