A Semi-Vertical Mouse is a type of ergonomic computer mouse designed to reduce strain on the wrist, forearm, and shoulder by positioning the hand in a more natural, handshake-like posture. Unlike a fully vertical mouse, which places the hand in a 90-degree vertical position, a semi-vertical mouse offers a tilted angle (typically between 45 and 75 degrees) that strikes a balance between traditional flat mice and fully vertical designs. This intermediate angle helps alleviate discomfort while maintaining familiarity and ease of use for those transitioning from a standard mouse.
