The drinking of Scotch whisky was introduced to India in the nineteenth century, during the British Raj. In the late 1820s, Edward Dyer moved from England to set up the first brewery in India at Kasauli. The brewery was soon shifted to nearby Solan (close to the British summer capital Shimla), as there was an abundant supply of fresh springwater there. The Kasauli Brewery site was converted to a distillery becoming India's first distillery, which is currently operated by Mohan Meakin. Production of alcohol from grain was hampered by shortage of extra grain, due to food shortages. Allowing grains to be used for alcohol manufacture is a controversial subject in India, due to poverty and alcohol's ambivalent reputation. Economic liberalisation in the 1990s led to the moderate reduction of import duties, to about 35%, giving distillers access to better technology. The manufacture of whisky from malted grains in India was pioneered by Amrut Distilleries in 1982. Amrut Distilleries began procuring barley from farmers in Haryana, Punjab and Rajasthan, in addition to molasses, and launched Prestige Blended Malt Whisky in the Canteen Stores Department in 1986. The first batch of single malt whisky was ready within 18 months. Because India had no culture of consuming single malts at the time, the company did not consider bottling it as a single malt. Instead, the whisky was blended with alcohol distilled from sugarcane to produce MaQintosh Premium Whisky. Amrut Distilleries launched Amrut, the first single malt whisky to be made in India, on 24 August 2004.

The global Single Malt Indian Whisky market size is projected to grow from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of % from 2024 to 2030.
