The global Smokers Toothpaste market size is predicted to grow from US$ 403 million in 2025 to US$ 634 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.7% from 2026 to 2032.

In 2025, the global production of smokers toothpaste reached approximately 34 million units, with an average global market price of around US$12 per unit. In the same year, the global total production capacity of smokers toothpaste reached 48 million units. The industry average gross profit margin of this product reached 36%. Smokers toothpaste is a functional oral care product developed for people who smoke long-term, use tobacco products, or frequently drink coffee or tea, which easily lead to tooth stains. Its core function is to remove tobacco stains, nicotine residue, tar deposits, and alleviate bad breath. These products typically have stronger cleaning and polishing capabilities, and their formulas often include high-abrasion silica, calcium carbonate, baking soda, activated charcoal, peroxides, menthol, antibacterial agents, and fluoride to enhance stain removal, whitening, breath freshening, and antibacterial effects. Compared to regular toothpaste, smoker-specific toothpaste emphasizes functions such as 'stain removal,' 'nicotine stain cleaning,' and 'deep whitening,' while some high-end products also offer additional functions such as desensitization, gum repair, and herbal care.

From a supply chain perspective, Smokers toothpaste's upstream mainly includes raw material suppliers such as abrasives, surfactants, humectants, fragrances, activated charcoal, baking soda, fluoride, and packaging materials; the midstream consists of toothpaste brand owners, OEM/ODM manufacturers, and oral care formula R&D companies, with representative companies including Lion Corporation, Sunstar, White Glo, and Kobayashi Pharmaceutical; and the downstream includes supermarkets, pharmacies, e-commerce platforms, dental clinics, convenience stores, and cross-border e-commerce channels. In recent years, online channels have grown significantly faster than traditional supermarkets, while high-smoking markets such as Southeast Asia, the Middle East, and India have become important growth areas for the industry.

From an industry outlook perspective, although the long-term trend of global traditional cigarette consumption is declining, the number of smokers remains large. Meanwhile, the widespread adoption of new tobacco products such as e-cigarettes, heated tobacco products (HNB), and nicotine pouches ensures continued demand for 'stain removal,' 'breath care,' and 'whitening.' Consumers are increasingly valuing dental aesthetics and social image, which is also driving smokers' acceptance of professional toothpaste. In addition, natural herbal products, activated charcoal, and whitening and repairing products have become growth hotspots, with particularly significant growth in the Japanese, South Korean, and Southeast Asian markets. In the future, the industry will upgrade towards 'gentle and effective whitening,' 'low-abrasion,' 'anti-sensitivity,' 'natural formulas,' and 'premium' products, while e-commerce and cross-border sales will continue to expand industry penetration.
