The global Sodium Deoxycholate market size is predicted to grow from US$ 37.3 million in 2025 to US$ 55.1 million in 2031; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.7% from 2025 to 2031.

Sodium deoxycholate is the sodium salt of deoxycholic acid, a secondary bile acid that occurs naturally in the human body. It functions as an emulsifying agent, aiding in the absorption and digestion of dietary fats. Sodium deoxycholate has been utilized in various fields, including medicine and cosmetics. In the medical field, it is commonly used as an injectable fat-dissolving agent to reduce localized fat deposits. In cosmetics, it is employed as an ingredient in certain skincare products aimed at reducing the appearance of fat cells and promoting skin tightening. Sodium deoxycholate acts by disrupting cell membranes and facilitating fat cell breakdown, leading to its diverse applications.

The industry trend for sodium deoxycholate is experiencing growth, primarily driven by its utilization in cosmetic procedures and aesthetics. As the demand for non-surgical fat reduction and body contouring increases, sodium deoxycholate plays a significant role as an injectable fat-dissolving agent. The procedure, popularly known as 'mesotherapy' or 'lipolysis,' involves the targeted injection of sodium deoxycholate into specific areas to reduce localized fat deposits. Additionally, sodium deoxycholate's potential in promoting skin tightening has expanded its presence in skincare formulations aimed at improving body contours. With the rise in aesthetic treatments and consumer preferences for non-invasive procedures, the industry trend for sodium deoxycholate as a cosmetic ingredient and fat-dissolving agent is expected to continue positively.
