Spanish ham, also known as "Jamón," is a cherished delicacy and an essential component of Spanish gastronomy. It holds a significant cultural and culinary importance in Spain, with a rich history dating back centuries. Spanish ham comes in various types and qualities, each distinguished by its production method, the breed of pig, and the region where it is produced. The two primary types of Spanish ham are Jamón Serrano and Jamón Ibérico.

Jamón Serrano: This type of Spanish ham is made from white pigs, primarily Duroc, Landrace, or Large White breeds. The term "Serrano" refers to the mountains (sierras) where the hams were traditionally cured due to the ideal climate conditions for the process. Jamón Serrano is salt-cured and air-dried for an extended period, typically around 12 to 18 months. It has a rich, savory flavor and a firm texture.

Jamón Ibérico: Jamón Ibérico is considered the pinnacle of Spanish ham and is highly prized for its exceptional taste and quality. It is made from Iberian pigs, a breed native to the Iberian Peninsula, which includes Spain and Portugal.
