Starch sausage is a food product, usually in the form of a sausage made from starch and other ingredients. First, starch sausage is not the same as ham hock. Ham sausage is a meat enema product made from fresh or frozen animal, poultry or fish meat as the main ingredient through a series of processes. Starch sausage, on the other hand, may contain less meat ingredients and is mainly based on starch and other ingredients. Secondly, there is no uniform national standard on the starch content of starch sausages. This has led to a wide variation in the composition of starch sausage products in the market, and some products may contain a higher amount of starch. In conclusion, starchy sausage is a food product with a variety of ingredients and production methods.

The global Starch Sausage market size is projected to grow from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2024 to 2030.
