Steel pipe coatings, as the name suggests, are the coatings used for the protection of steel pipes. They are used where there is involvement of chemicals, gases, liquids and other materials. Steel pipe coatings are used for the protection of pipes from corrosion, erosion and from other problems such as cavitation.

Steel pipe coatings are widely used in the oil & gas and chemical processing industries. They also play a key role in water transportation and wastewater treatment. In wastewater treatment, steel pipe coatings help in retarding the growth of harmful bacteria. Steel pipe coatings also find applications in automotive, construction, food processing and mining industries. They are made from several materials such as epoxy resins, cement-mortar, polyurethane and bituminous asphalt.
