A straw spoon is a specially designed tableware. This kind of tableware usually has the function of a straw, that is, it can suck liquid like a straw. At the same time, the other end is designed in the shape of a spoon to facilitate scooping up food or solid particles. The design of the straw spoon makes it suitable for sucking liquid food, such as soup, milk, juice, etc., and can also be used to scoop semi-solid or solid food, such as paste food, soft food, etc. The practicality of the straw spoon is reflected in its ability to meet the dining needs of specific groups of people or in specific scenarios. For example, for young children, the elderly, the sick, or people with poor hand coordination, sippy spoons can provide a more convenient and safer way to eat. At the same time, the straw spoon is also suitable for some specific eating environments or occasions, such as outdoor picnics, travel, etc., because it can both suck and scoop, reducing the trouble of carrying multiple tableware.

The global Straw Spoon market size is projected to grow from US$ 12.4 million in 2024 to US$ 17.9 million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.3% from 2024 to 2030.
