Surfing is a water sport in which a surfer or an individual uses a board to ride on the forward section of a moving wave of water, which usually carries the surfer toward the shore. Surfing is usually done in the ocean, but developments in technology have made it possible to create waves in pools and rivers as an alternative. Surfing is considered a dynamic and accessible sport which can be learnt by adults, children, and even dogs. A surfboard is an elongated platform used in the sport of surfing. The surfboard has a light-weight yet sturdy structure that supports the person standing on it while riding the ocean wave.
