The global Test and Assessment Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 3337 million in 2025 to US$ 6491 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 10.2% from 2026 to 2032.

Test and assessment services refer to professional services that systematically evaluate and analyze an individual's or group's knowledge acquisition, ability level, psychological characteristics, and career inclinations through scientific assessment theories and technologies. These services typically encompass test question design, assessment tool development, online examination system construction, data collection and analysis, result report generation, and feedback application, and are widely used in education admissions, professional qualification certification, corporate recruitment and training, and government civil servant selection. The core of test and assessment services lies in providing decision-makers with reliable data support through objective, fair, and standardized assessment methods, enabling scientific selection and accurate evaluation.

From an industry chain perspective, test and assessment services, as a crucial link in the education and human resources industry, are at a critical stage of digital and intelligent integration. The upstream mainly includes question bank resource development, assessment theory research, test content design, and assessment algorithm and platform technology providers; the downstream encompasses application ends such as educational institutions, schools, government departments, and corporate recruitment and training institutions, with increasingly diversified demand scenarios. Overall, testing and assessment services are evolving from traditional paper-and-pencil exams and static evaluations towards online, intelligent, and adaptive assessments. Leveraging artificial intelligence, big data, and psychometric models, they are improving
