The upstream supply chain includes high-potency API manufacturing, specialty chemical suppliers, and lyophilization equipment producers. The midstream sector covers lyophilized powder preparation, sterile filling, rigorous quality testing (e.g., purity, sterility), and packaging, requiring GMP compliance and occupational exposure control. Downstream distribution occurs through specialty pharmacies or direct shipments to transplant centers, oncology departments, and urology units for transplant conditioning or localized bladder cancer therapy. Supply chain management focuses on cold chain logistics, stability assurance, and medication safety oversight.
