A ton bag unloader is a device used to unload large ton bags containing bulk materials. It can unload bulk materials from large bags and transport them to downstream production equipment or storage equipment. The ton bag unloader usually consists of a hoisting device, a ton bag supporting device, a discharge port, a conveying device and a control system. The working principle of the ton bag unloader is to hang the ton bag on the hoisting device, fix the ton bag through the ton bag support device, and then use the cutting device to cut the bottom of the ton bag to discharge the materials. A conveying device is usually equipped under the discharge port to convey materials to downstream equipment for material transportation and processing.
