The global Underwater Hull Cleaning Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 1408 million in 2025 to US$ 2071 million in 2031; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.6% from 2025 to 2031.

Underwater hull cleaning service refers to the process of cleaning the hull of a ship or boat while it is submerged in water. This service is typically performed by professional divers or specialized underwater cleaning equipment.

The hull of a vessel can accumulate various types of marine growth, such as algae, barnacles, and other organisms, which can negatively impact the performance and efficiency of the vessel. Underwater hull cleaning helps to remove this marine growth, along with any accumulated debris or sediment, to maintain the vessel's optimal performance.

The cleaning process may involve the use of specialized brushes, scrapers, or water jets to remove the marine growth from the hull. The divers or cleaning equipment carefully navigate around the vessel, ensuring thorough cleaning of all surfaces, including the keel, propellers, and rudders.

Regular underwater hull cleaning is essential for maintaining the vessel's speed, fuel efficiency, and maneuverability. It also helps to prevent the spread of invasive species and reduces the risk of corrosion or damage to the hull.

Underwater hull cleaning service providers may also offer additional services such as inspection and maintenance of the vessel's hull, propellers, and other underwater components. They may also provide documentation and reports on the condition of the
