Unhulled Sesame Paste is a thick, oily paste made from whole sesame seeds that retain their outer hull during processing. Unlike hulled sesame paste, where the outer skin is removed, unhulled sesame paste contains the entire sesame seed, including its fiber-rich husk. This paste is typically darker in color, slightly more bitter in taste, and higher in fiber, calcium, and other minerals due to the inclusion of the hull. It is used in a variety of culinary applications, especially in Middle Eastern, Asian, and health-conscious food products.
