A urine diverting toilet separates urine and solid waste. The toilet is equipped with a fan that draws out moisture and air which makes it completely odorless in the space where the toilet is located. A urine diverting toilet works in all environments, as no drain, heated space or water is required. Thanks to the urine separation, both the smell and the volume of the waste that must be disposed of is reduced. The urine is discharged to a collection vessel or infiltration, while the solid waste ends up in a compostable biobag made of corn starch which can then be composted.

The global Urine Diverting Toilets market size is projected to grow from US$ 36.5 million in 2024 to US$ 51.8 million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.0% from 2024 to 2030.
