Utilities cable duct refers to a protective conduit or channel used to encase and safeguard various types of utility cables. These cables can include telecommunications cables, electrical wires, fiber optic cables, or other essential utility lines like water or gas pipes. Utilities cable ducts are typically constructed from materials such as PVC (polyvinyl chloride), HDPE (high-density polyethylene). Utilities Cable Ducts encompass various types, including HDPE Corrugated Optic Ducts, HDPE Microducts, and HDPE Silicone-coated Ducts, each serving distinct purposes. These ducts find application in both Underground Cable Ducting, where they are buried to shield cables from environmental factors and reduce visual impact, and Aerial Cable Ducting, where they are installed above ground, often suspended from utility poles, facilitating cable deployment in rural areas or where underground installation is unfeasible.

The global Utilities Cable Duct market size is projected to grow from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of %from 2024 to 2030.
