VCI LLDPE Stretch Film is a specialized packaging material that integrates the flexibility and high tensile strength of linear low-density polyethylene (LLDPE) with the corrosion-inhibiting properties of volatile corrosion inhibitors (VCI). LLDPE imparts the film with excellent mechanical strength and tensile properties, allowing it to conform to various shapes and sizes of products during the packaging process while maintaining structural integrity. The VCI component releases protective vapors within a sealed environment, forming a protective layer on metal surfaces to effectively prevent corrosion caused by humidity, salt, and other corrosive substances during transportation and storage. This film not only offers physical protection against scratches and impacts but also provides chemical corrosion protection, extending the lifespan of metal products. Therefore, VCI LLDPE Stretch Film demonstrates its unique advantages in packaging applications requiring both corrosion protection and physical shielding, providing an effective solution to safeguard metal goods from environmental factors.
