Vegan fish sauce is a plant-based alternative to traditional fish sauce, a popular condiment and flavoring in many Asian cuisines. Traditional fish sauce is made from fermented fish and salt, but vegan fish sauce is created without using fish or animal products. It is designed to provide a similar umami-rich, salty, and savory flavor to dishes while catering to the dietary preferences of vegans and vegetarians.

The market for vegan fish sauce has been growing due to the increasing popularity of plant-based and vegetarian diets, as well as the demand for vegan-friendly alternatives to traditional condiments. As consumers become more health-conscious and environmentally aware, the market for vegan fish sauce has expanded, and it is used in various culinary applications, from traditional Asian recipes to fusion cuisine.
