Abstracts

Dicamba is an herbicide that selectively kills broad-leaved weeds (as opposed to grass family plants). It is commonly used in conjunction with other herbicides, such as glyphosate, and according to the National Pesticide Information Center is currently found in about 1,100 herbicide products. It mimics natural plant hormones which cause abnormal growth and eventually death. Dicamba is sold under a variety of trade names including Banvel, Diablo, Oracle, and Vanquish, and is found in products used for both agricultural and home landscape applications. Dicamba is a pre- and post-emergent herbicide, used on perennial broadleaf and 2,4-D herbicide-resistant weeds. Its chemical name is 3,6-dichloro-methoxybenzoic acid. Its most common nonagricultural use is on lawns, but it is also used on ornamental plantings, public and railroad rights-of-way and uncultivated open areas
