Abstracts

Sorbitol is a polyol (sugar alcohol) that is used as a sweetening agent in various food products, including: drugs (NSAIDs) that are used for the treatment of mild to moderate pain, fever, and inflammation. It has 60% of the sweetness of sucrose, with one-third fewer calories, and leaves a sweet, cool and pleasant taste. Sorbitol is useful in the production of confectionery, baked goods and chocolate where products tend to become dry or harden. Sorbitol occurs naturally in various fruits and berries. First discovered in 1872, it is today commercially produced by the hydrogenation of glucose and is available in both liquid and crystalline form. The primary objective of the report is to identify opportunities in the market and present updates and insights, pertaining to various segments of the global Sorbitol market. Present scenario represents Approx. 61206 MT importing quantity of Sorbitol globally from 53 countries. Currently there are approx. 350 buyers exist globally in the market.
