Dental Tweezer Market Insights

Lucintel forecasts that non-locking type is expected to witness higher growth over the forecast period as it is more affordable than locking tweezers.

Within this market, diagnostic will remain the largest segment due to growing usage of this tweezers for general oral examination, checking teeth and gums for caries, fractures, or other abnormalities.

North America is expected to witness the highest growth over the forecast period due to increasing dental awareness, improved oral hygiene practices, and an aging population.
