Abstracts

According to this report, the global fragrance industry observed modest growth through 2007-2012 and is expected to sustain the same growth course during 2013-2018. Market development is impelled by increasing demand in Asia Pacific (APAC) and the Rest of the World (ROW), resulting from the rising population among the aspiring middle classes in various emerging economies. The industry revenue is forecast to reach an estimated $39.3 billion by 2018.

The global fragrance industry observed modest growth through 2007-2012 and is expected to sustain the same growth course during 2013-2018. Market development is impelled by increasing demand in Asia Pacific (APAC) and the Rest of the World (ROW), resulting from the rising population among the aspiring middle classes in various emerging economies. The industry revenue is forecast to reach an estimated $39.3 billion by 2018.

Lucintel, a leading global management consulting and market research firm, has analyzed the industry and offers its findings in its comprehensive research report, Global Fragrance Industry 2013-2018: Trend, Profit, and Forecast Analysis.

This report is geographically segmented in four regions: North America, Europe, APAC, and ROW. Europe and APAC represented the largest markets in 2012, while APAC experienced the highest growth during 2007-2012 and is forecast to hold the same lead position over 2013-2018.

Lucintel identifies maintaining good quality, rise in packaging costs, continuous innovations, and fixing competitive price as major growth challenges. Maintaining balance between quality and price is the industrys biggest challenge. Rising disposable income and consumer spending, population growth, and organized retail expansion are the drivers providing the industry with competitive advantage.
