According to a new market report published by Lucintel, the future of the UV curable resin market looks good with opportunities in the industrial coating, graphic arts, and electronic industries. The global UV curable resin market is forecast to grow at a CAGR of 5.4% from 2015 to 2020. The major drivers of growth for this market are the growth of end use industries, demand for green coatings, an increase in demand for materials with faster cure time, and stringent emission laws.

In this market, epoxy and polyester acrylates are the major chemical types for UV curable resins. Lucintel predicts that epoxy acrylate will remain the largest chemical type to be used in the UV curable resin market during the forecast period, supported by growing demand in end use industries. The largest application in the UV curable resin market is coatings. On the basis of comprehensive research, Lucintel forecasts that coating applications are expected to show above average growth during the forecast period.

Within the UV curable resin market, the industrial coating industry is expected to remain the leading market. Growth of wood coatings, plastic coatings, and metal coatings is expected to spur growth for this segment over the forecast period.

Asia Pacific is expected to remain the largest market due to growth in end use industries, such as electronics and industrial coatings. Asia Pacific and the Rest of the World are expected to show above average growth during the forecast period by virtue of growth of the electronic and industrial coating industries.

For market expansion, the report suggests innovation and new product development so that the unique characteristics of UV curable resins can be capitalized.

Emerging trends, which have a direct impact on the dynamics of the industry, include the emergence of bio-based products and continuous innovation and improvement in products and technology. Allnex, Sartomer, Eternal Chemical, Miwon Specialty Chemical, and BASF are among the major suppliers of UV curable resins.
