Abstracts

The global soft wall military shelters market is expected to increase with a CAGR of 1.0% by 2020. The major drivers of the soft wall military shelters market are increasing terrorist and militant activities and increase in defense budgets. The defense sectors of Russia, India, and China are some of the fastest growing sectors in the world and a significant amount of money is expected to be spent on defense procurement activities. The military shelters can be used for various purposes, such as command posts, medical facilities, base camps, aircraft and vehicle maintenance shelters, chemical/biological decontamination shelters, hangars, warehouses, and workshops. Advanced shelters with lightweight fabric, attached with electronic systems and better features, such as wind resistance, heat resistance, and waterproof materials, are driving the demand for the soft wall military shelters market.
