Abstracts

The future of the global polyurethane (PU) tooling board market looks promising with opportunities in automotive, marine, wind energy, and aerospace & defense application. The global polyurethane tooling board market is expected to decline in 2020 due to global economic recession led by COVID-19. However, the market will witness recovery in the year 2021, and it is expected to reach an estimated $0.2 billion by 2026 with a CAGR of 5.3% from 2021 to 2026. The major driver of growth for this market is increasing usage of polyurethane tooling boards in the automotive and aerospace industries due to low cost and shorter prototype production time.

Emerging trends, which have a direct impact on the dynamics of the industry, include increased demand for high temperature boards, and development of custom-sized tooling boards.
