Abstracts

Privileged Account Management or Privileged Session Management Privileged Access Management (PAM) is a type of solution that helps protect, control, manage, and monitor privileged access to critical assets. To achieve these goals, PAM solutions typically use the credentials of a privileged account (ie, an administrator account) and place them in a secure repository (Vault) to isolate the use of privileged accounts to reduce the risk of theft of these credentials. After entering the repository, the system administrator needs to access their credentials through the PAM system, then authenticate them and record their access rights. When the credentials are re-checked in, the credentials are reset to ensure that the administrator must pass the PAM system the next time they want to use the credentials. By centralizing privileged credentials in one place, PAM systems can ensure a high level of security, control who is accessing them, record all access and monitor any suspicious activity

A privileged user is someone who has administrative access to critical systems. For instance, the individual who can set up and delete email accounts on a Microsoft Exchange Server is a privileged user. The word is not accidental. Like any privilege, it should only be Only those seen as responsible can be trusted with 'root' privileges like the ability to change system configurations, install software, change user accounts or access secure data. Of course, from a security perspective, it never makes sense to And condition of trust can be revoked at any time.
