Compounding is the science of combining and preparing personalized medicines for patients. These medications are prepared based on the practitioner's prescription wherein, the individual ingredients are mixed together as per the suggested dosage form, and strength. The trained pharmacists are approved to personalize the medicine for the patient meeting their specific needs such as strengths, dosage forms, flavors, and exclusion of ingredients for which the patient is allergic or sensitive. However, compounded drugs are not FDA approved, indicating that FDA does not inspect the safety and the effectiveness of these drugs.
