Abstracts

Couverture Chocolate is processed from the cocoa beans which contains an exceptionally high amount of cocoa butter. The specialty of chocolate couverture is attributed to the crystallization characteristics of cocoa butter. Basically, the processing or tempering of chocolate couverture involves a careful selection of crystals of cocoa butter which are inherently in the stable form and preserving them in the chocolate. The preservation of these stable crystals of cocoa butter in chocolate couverture is what imparts it a perfect texture and snap. The high content of cocoa butter also grants it unique taste profile which expresses the intensity of chocolate flavor in its purest form. Chocolate couverture is also called as cooking chocolate due to its various applications as a filling and glazing agent. In addition, due to its stability, chocolate couverture can be melted and re-melted and used in molding of chocolate products.
