Abstracts

A contract development and manufacturing company (CDMO) is a company within the pharmaceutical industry that provides drug development and manufacturing services. Pharmaceutical companies partner with CDMOs as a way to outsource drug development and drug manufacturing. Cell and gene therapy (CGT) involves living cells, tissues, viral vectors and non-viral gene modification components. Its R&D technology and production process are more difficult than those of traditional biological drugs. CGT CDMO, as the upstream of CGT pharmaceutical companies, can help cell therapy companies overcome many difficulties in R&D and production while reducing costs, to improve R&D efficiency and enhance the commercialization success rate. Contract development and manufacturing organizations (CDMOs) offer services that include process development, assay development, cell therapy production, and testing services. The pressure for manufacturing innovation and optimization can incentivize cell and gene therapy companies to seek third-party partners with technical, manufacturing, and regulatory expertise. Benefits of partnering with a cell or gene therapy CDMO include scalability, speed to market, access to technical expertise without overhead costs, and cost efficiencies. This report features CDMOs that specialize in manufacturing and clinical trial support specifically for cell and gene therapies (CGT).

The report combines extensive quantitative analysis and exhaustive qualitative analysis, ranges from a macro overview of the total market size, industry chain, and market dynamics to micro details of segment markets by type, application and region, and, as a result, provides a holistic view of, as well as a deep insight into the CGT CDMO market covering all its essential aspects.
