Abstracts

Non-Alcoholic Beer refers to low-alcohol content beverage prepared by the fermentation of major ingredients such as malt, hop, water and sometimes yeast (to accelerate the process). The production of non-alcoholic beer is carried out under the controlled process of malting with a set temperature and pH. Removal of alcohol is performed by various techniques such as vacuum distillation, reverse osmosis, or by restricting the ability of the yeast to ferment wort. Every brewery has its own methods and trade secrets on manufacturing non-alcoholic beer.
