Abstracts

The monomers of Nylon 6,6 are a diamine and diacid and the amide links alternate 'head-to-tail'/'tail-to-head'. The first number refers to the diamine, the second to the diacid. Some nylons use aromatic monomers which are denoted by letters eg T for terephthalic and I for isophthalic components. Nylons generally are strong, tough (but notch-sensitive), rather resilient polymers with good barrier properties and high fatigue and abrasion resistance but high water absorption (slow in thick sections) accompanied by an increase in dimensions which can be as much as 3% under extreme circumstances. Nylons have good resistance to oils, greases, solvents and alkalis but not to acids which tend to hydrolyse them.

The Nylon 6,6 Fibre market revenue was xx Million USD in 2016, grew to xx Million USD in 2020, and will reach xx Million USD in 2026, with a CAGR of xx during 2020-2026.
