Abstracts

Silicones, also known as polysiloxanes, are polymeric synthetic materials which are formulated from inorganic-organic monomers. They are bonded through hydrogen and carbon atoms and are usually rubber-like and heat resistant. Silicones are increasingly being used in various applications due to their ideal properties such as resistance to ozone and UV light, low chemical reactivity, non-stickiness, light weight, high permeability for gases, thermal stability, etc.

Based on the Silicone market development status, competitive landscape and development model in different regions of the world, this report is dedicated to providing niche markets, potential risks and comprehensive competitive strategy analysis in different fields. From the competitive advantages of different types of products and services, the development opportunities and consumption characteristics and structure analysis of the downstream application fields are all analyzed in detail.
