Abstracts

UHT (Ultra-high temperature) Milk refers to the sterilized milk which has been subjected to thermal treatment. The Ultra-high temperature processing kills the spores and germs present in the milk but preserves the essential vitamins and nutrients. It is heated beyond the temperature of 135 degrees Celsius (275 degrees Fahrenheit) for 1 or 2 seconds which helps in increasing the shelf life of milk without adding any preservatives. UHT milk is aseptically packed which makes it ready for consumption directly from the carton without any need of boiling. It can be stored at room temperature and thus have minimal requirement of refrigeration and cold chains.
