Abstracts

Virtual sports betting is the newest innovation in the larger sports betting industry. Conducting sports events virtually — via computer software — is opening up a whole new avenue for sportsbooks and bettors around the world.

Virtual sports are essentially video games where computer software plays out sporting events, races or contests. Advanced algorithms determine the outcome; they account for the skill of the participants as well as the luck elements inherent in real-world sporting events.

The computer-generated graphics of the virtual sports are usually advanced and look much like you would see on current-generating gaming consoles, but short of watching a television broadcast.

Virtual sports have gained traction as a way for sportsbooks to offer action without needing a real-world event on which to take wagers, increasing the velocity of bets they can take.

The report combines extensive quantitative analysis and exhaustive qualitative analysis, ranges from a macro overview of the total market size, industry chain, and market dynamics to micro details of segment markets by type, application and region, and, as a result, provides a holistic view of, as well as a deep insight into the Virtual Sports Betting market covering all its essential aspects.
