Argentina - Travel & Tourism: Government initiatives driven market (Strategy, Performance and Risk Analysis)

SUMMARY

Argentine tourism is mainly driven by domestic tourists. The country's total tourist volume reached 65.6 million in 2016 and is expected to reach 79.6 million by 2021. The increase in the number of tourists to Argentina is driven by leisure. In terms of total tourist volume, Argentina ranked 23rd after Poland. Argentina ranked 21st after Russia in terms of volume on domestic trips and ranked 13th after Sweden in terms of volume growth on domestic trips. Leisure was the primary reason behind it.

Depreciation of the domestic currency Peso led to the increase in inbound tourism. The Argentine government imposed taxes on debit and credit card purchases from abroad and imposed taxes on direct dollar purchases. That made outbound travelling and spending costlier for Argentine citizens.

MarketLine Premium's industry reports provide a comprehensive market view including sections on: risk and reward, key industry trends and drivers, industry SWOT analysis, industry benchmarking to compare key performance indicators with regional and global markets, competitive landscape, industry innovation and key developments.

KEY HIGHLIGHTS

Tax imposition on credit and debit card purchases as well as dollar purchases

Since 2001, Argentina has gone through several economic crises like the devaluation of the domestic currency by 20% and a financial debt crisis. To control the outflow of foreign currency through tourism, especially US dollars, the government imposed exchange controls to maintain sufficient US dollar reserves in the Central bank. Besides that the Argentine government imposed taxes ranging from 20% to 35% on credit and debit card purchases for goods and services abroad.

Argentine government policy to encourage domestic tourism

The country's domestic tourism expenditure accounted for a 69% share of the country's total tourism expenditure in 2016 and is expected to increase to 72% by 2021. Due to that, the Argentine government set up some holidays to build a longer weekend to reinforce the domestic tourism industry.

Availability of skilled labor in Argentina

The Argentine economy has greatly benefitted from the availability of skilled labor. This availability is mainly attributed to the increase in educational enrolments in the country. This creates a greater ease in finding employees for both the public and private sectors with the right skill set. In addition, the Argentine government's ICT-supporting capacity has also improved significantly. Usage of broadband mobile services has doubled and the cellular signal now covers 98% of the country. This increase in broadband penetration helps tourists and travelers to find their desired destinations.
