Passenger Rail in the United States

Summary

Passenger Rail in the United States industry profile provides top-line qualitative and quantitative summary information including: market share, market size (value 2019-24, and forecast to 2029). The profile also contains descriptions of the leading players including key financial metrics and analysis of competitive pressures within the market.

Key Highlights

Passenger rail sector consists of all passenger transport by rail services, including international, inter-city, regional, and suburban trains ('Commuter trains' in US terminology are included). However, tram/streetcar, metro/subway, and similar trains are not included.

The US passenger rail sector recorded revenues of $14,405.6 million in 2024, representing a negative compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 15.6% between 2019 and 2024.

The US passenger rail sector consumption volumes declined with a negative CAGR of 16.1% between 2019 and 2024, reaching a total of 13.5 billion passenger kilometers (PKM) in 2024.

In 2024, the US passenger rail sector grew by 3.8%, driven by a rise in travel and tourism. Increased domestic and international tourism led to higher demand for rail services, boosting ridership across the country. The expansion of high-speed trains and regional routes also contributed to this growth.
