KEY HIGHLIGHTS

The residential construction market is defined as the value of work put in place annually for residential buildings. Market value is defined in general as the total output value of construction activity in any given time period, including costs related to construction materials, equipment and services for new construction, refurbishment, repair and maintenance and demolition. All market data and forecasts are represented in nominal terms (i.e. without adjustment for inflation) and all currency conversions used in the creation of this report have been calculated using constant 2020 annual average exchange rates.

The Canadian residential construction market had total revenues of $125.4bn in 2020, representing a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.5% between 2016 and 2020.

The new construction segment was the market's most lucrative in 2020, with total revenues of $65.0bn, equivalent to 51.9% of the market's overall value.

As a result of provincially mandated lockdowns in Canada, many residential construction projects experienced severe delays or were halted altogether. In addition, social distancing measures negatively impacted productivity as the number of residential construction workers legally allowed on site at a given time was limited. This has hindered residential construction market growth over the year.
