KEY HIGHLIGHTS

The residential construction market is defined as the value of work put in place annually for residential buildings. Market value is defined in general as the total output value of construction activity in any given time period, including costs related to construction materials, equipment and services for new construction, refurbishment, repair and maintenance and demolition. All market data and forecasts are represented in nominal terms (i.e. without adjustment for inflation) and all currency conversions used in the creation of this report have been calculated using constant 2020 annual average exchange rates.

The French residential construction market had total revenues of $118.3bn in 2020, representing a compound annual rate of change (CARC) of -0.7% between 2016 and 2020.

The new construction segment was the market's most lucrative in 2020, with total revenues of $89.9bn, equivalent to 75.9% of the market's overall value.

Residential construction projects were kept open as exemptions to nationwide lockdown rules in France. However, on-site social distancing measures negatively affected productivity within the market, whilst border restrictions caused European-wide construction material shortages. This caused significant delays to project pipelines, hindering overall market growth within the French residential construction sector.
