Residential Construction in the Netherlands

SUMMARY

Residential Construction in the Netherlands industry profile provides top-line qualitative and quantitative summary information including: market size (value 2015-19, and forecast to 2024). The profile also contains descriptions of the leading players including key financial metrics and analysis of competitive pressures within the market.

KEY HIGHLIGHTS

The residential construction market is defined as the value of work put in place annually for residential buildings. This includes apartments and apartment blocks, houses, and similar buildings, but not hotels and other forms of commercial, temporary accommodation, and includes both single and multi-family housing. Market value is defined in general as the total value of construction activity in any given time period, including costs related to construction materials, equipment and services, new construction, refurbishment, repair and maintenance and demolition. It is synonymous with measures such as construction value put in place or value of construction work done.

The Dutch residential construction market had total revenues of $66.2bn in 2019, representing a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 10% between 2015 and 2019.

The construction permit process in the Netherlands is considered to be slow and is the ability of housebuilders to capitalize on high levels of demand.

In addition to a lack of consumer confidence given the general economic impact of COVID-19, there is likely to be lasting disruption to the UK's residential project pipeline as well.
