Abstracts

The global authentication and brand protection market was valued at USD 2.9 billion in 2023 and is estimated to reach USD 4.3 billion by 2028, registering a CAGR of 8.3% during the forecast period. Consumers are increasingly concerned about the safety and authenticity of the products they purchase. They want to ensure that the products they buy are genuine and pose no risk to their health or well-being. Authentication technologies play a significant role in addressing these consumer concerns. The authentication technologies also help to reduce the risk of harm from counterfeit goods. Counterfeit products, such as counterfeit pharmaceuticals, electronics, or luxury goods, can often be of inferior quality, and in some cases, pose significant health and safety risks to consumers. These factors are fueling the market growth.

The blockchain segment is growing at the highest CAGR in the authentication and brand protection market due to its inherent features of transparency, immutability, and decentralized nature. Blockchain technology enables the secure recording and tracking of transactions and product information throughout the supply chain, ensuring the authenticity and integrity of products. By leveraging blockchain, brands can establish a tamper-proof and auditable record of their products, enabling seamless traceability, anti-counterfeiting measures, and enhanced consumer trust.
