Abstracts

The global server market is anticipated to undergo a revival in 2024, driven by the emergence of generative AI and the optimization of large language models (LLMs) for enterprise applications. This resurgence is primarily attributed to the increasing demand for AI servers, expected to propel the recovery of the global server market. This report provides an overview of the current status of the global server industry, offering forecasts for shipment volumes spanning from 2024 to 2028 and quarterly shipment volumes from 1Q 2022 to 4Q 2024. Additionally, it provides insights into server shipment volumes categorized by region and CPU architecture, while also examining the industry and market outlook.
