Abstracts

The shipment volume of global Wi-Fi (Wireless Fidelity) enabled devices in 2019 reached 3.05 billion units, up 2.6% year-on-year. Affected by COVID-19 pandemic, overall shipment of consumer electronics products dropped, including Wi-Fi enabled devices. In the long run, although smartphones will continue to be main Wi-Fi enabled devices, the future of smart home appliances, wearables, and other W-Fi enabled devices is going to be promising. This report provides an overview of Wi-Fi enabled device shipment performance over the period 2020-2024 and examines key trends observed over the years.
