Abstracts

Protein hydrolysates are mixtures of peptides and free amino acids of different lengths. Whey protein (a milk proteolytic product) contains nine key amino acids and approximately 70-80% of the protein elements. It is used in many industrial applications for nutritionists, clinical, therapeutic and nutritional products. Because of its low antigenicity and high nutritional value, whey protein is expected to be an ideal ingredient in human milk substitute formula.

This report contains market size and forecasts of Protein Hydrolysates in global, including the following market information:
